Introduction to Affiliate Infantry

Anyone who has their own products needs affiliates to promote those products. Trying to do it all on your own is never going to get you the same level of results you could get if you have a significant number of active affiliates promoting your products.

Even if you were a super affiliate with a massive email list of your own, you still couldn't possibly hope to have the same reach as you would with other people promoting you. There is no one in existence who has the ability to reach every potential customer in the world completely on their own. It simply isn't possible!

This report will teach you the basics of building a huge army of affiliates to promote your products, and how to motivate them and keep them motivated so they will continue to promote your products on a regular basis.

You'll also learn powerful strategies to stay in contact with affiliates and to extract from them their best possible efforts time and time again.

Following these strategies, you will be able to skyrocket your product sales more than you ever thought possible, and you'll be glad you took the time and effort to build your own army of affiliate infantry men and women!
